Breakdown of Funds

Salary/Living Expenses

The amount recommended for living expenses covers personal costs such as: groceries, clothing, housing, vehicle expenses, household supplies, giving, etc.

Business Expenses

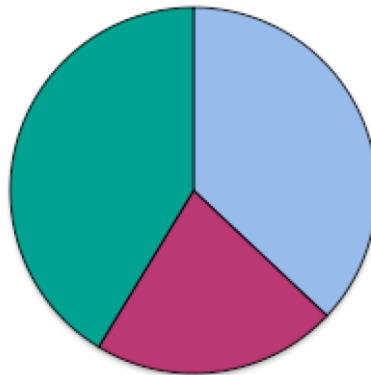

Missionaries are personally responsible for the costs relating to their ministry, and the recommended amount is intended to enable them to minister effectively. These expenses include ministry-related travel expenses; equipment and supplies needed for their ministry such as computers, printers, books, software, office supplies, paper and toner; communication expenses such as e-mail and Internet fees, prayer card and newsletter expenses, postage and printing; and administrative fees.

Benefits and Taxes

Missionaries are responsible for their own benefits and taxes. For instance, missionaries must pay twice as much into Social Security as the typical US employee, because they are paying both the employee and the employer share. They also must fund their retirement on their own and pay the entire costs of their medical, dental, and life insurance premiums.

One Time Moving Expense

There are a number of costs associated with our move to Florida including; truck rental and fuel. There are also set up cost for our new place; deposit and furniture. And finally we will now need a second vehicle since there is significant travelling associated with this new role. In total we estimate these costs to be $14,000. One-time gifts in lieu of or in addition to will help to meet some of these expenses.

We have a foundation who has agreed to donate $5000 toward these costs once we meet 90% of our monthly budget!

Partner With Us!

Ideally we are looking for people who will make a commitment to support us monthly. The most efficient and convenient way to make regular monthly contribution is with EFT (Electronic Funds Transfer). Other options are by check, phone, or on-line.
